INTRODUCTION

After years of hard-fought litigation, including precedential rulings from this Court on issues ranging from personal jurisdiction to forum non conveniens to the (non) certification of questions to the Washington Supreme Court, Class Counsel[1] negotiated a non-reversionary $38 million common fund Settlement with Playtika and Caesars Interactive Entertainment that, if finally approved, will completely resolve this case. The Agreement, as part of a trio of settlements in the social casino space, represents a watershed moment for consumers who have long alleged that social casino games constitute unlawful gambling. It is also an exceptionally strong settlement, both in terms of its absolute size and in terms of the individual cash relief it will afford to Class Members. For many, the settlement checks, set to delivered in the midst of a pandemic-caused recession, will be life changing: five-and six-figure credit card debts will be wiped out; home equity lines of credit will be paid off; and other debts caused by playing Defendants' games will be erased overnight.

These would be strong results in a slam-dunk class action alleging tried and true claims. What makes this and the other first-round settlements truly historic, though, is that the underlying claims represent Class Counsel's novel and previously-untested interpretation of state gambling laws—and that Class Counsel pressed forward with that theory for years, in the face of extraordinary risk and repeated setbacks across various courts and other fora, until finally reaching these landmark settlements. When a federal court characterizes a novel legal theory as nothing more than a "hodgepodge of hollow claims lacking allegations of real world harm or injuries,"[2] serious consideration had to be given to dropping the matters and moving on to something else. When five more courts dismiss the claims on the pleadings, the writing certainly seemed to be on the wall to say the least. Yet, Class Counsel pressed on, ultimately prevailed before the Court of Appeals, redoubled its efforts to take on an entire industry, defeated an onslaught of motion practice from a Who's Who of powerful defense firms, in the end recovering hundreds of millions of dollars for consumers in a wave of settlements. That is what Class Counsel did in this and the related actions, and the Settlement now before the Court was only made possible by Class Counsel's unwavering determination to achieve justice for the Class.

Notwithstanding these exceptional results, Class Counsel seek only the "benchmark" fee award of 25% of the Settlement Fund (substantially less than the 30% they are permitted to seek under the Settlement), in addition to reimbursement of their reasonably incurred litigation expenses as well as incentive awards for the Class Representatives. As explained further below, and in the attached expert declarations of Professors William B. Rubenstein and Charles M. Silver, the requested award would fairly compensate Class Counsel for the result they achieved and should be granted.

BACKGROUND

For the Court's convenience, the following "Background" section is included both in this motion and in the contemporaneously-filed motion for final approval.

In 2014, Class Counsel began investigating the burgeoning social casino industry. See Declaration of Todd Logan ("Logan Decl.") ¶ 3. The results of that investigation were startling: multinational gambling corporations like Caesars Entertainment, Churchill Downs, International Game Technology, and Scientific Games had found a way to smuggle slot machines onto consumers' smart phones without complying with any federal or state gambling laws. See id. ¶ 4. By 2015, social casino games were capturing more than $3 billion in annual revenues.[3] Those revenues, just like those of Vegas casinos, were disproportionately derived from gambling addicts who just couldn't stop themselves from buying chips and spinning the slots. Moreover, those revenues—at least in Class Counsel's judgment—were entirely ill-gotten gains under a variety of state gambling laws. See id.

[3] See Dean Takahashi, 13 predictions for the future of the $3.4B social casino games market, GAMESBEAT (Oct. 19, 2015), available at https://bit.ly/2W83Yu3.

Based on that investigation, in 2015 Class Counsel initiated a nationwide, multi-forum campaign against the social casino industry. See id. ¶ 5. As Professor William B. Rubenstein, the sole author of Newberg on Class Actions, summarizes that campaign (and its results):

> Prior to entering academia, I was a lawyer at the national office of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) for nearly a decade, during which time I pursued civil rights campaigns on behalf of minority groups. Based on that experience, it strikes me that what Class Counsel have pursued here is closer in form to a civil rights litigation campaign than it is to a series of discrete class action settlements. Class Counsel saw an injustice – a thinly disguised form of gambling preying on those most vulnerable to addictive gambling – and they sought to fix it. Their goal was not to win a case but to reform an entire industry, much like a civil rights campaign might aim to reform a particular type of discriminatory practice across an entire employment sector. To accomplish this end, Class Counsel went far beyond what lawyers pursuing a simple class action case would normally do. Class Counsel pursued multiple cases. Class Counsel pursued multiple defendants. Class Counsel filed actions in multiple forums. Class Counsel tested various state laws. Class Counsel built websites to help app users avoid forced arbitration clauses, lobbied legislators and regulators, and took their efforts to the media. When Class Counsel lost, they did not give up, but changed tactics or forums and kept going. And they did all of this with their own funds, risking millions of dollars of their own money to end this practice. What they have achieved so far, with these initial settlements, is an astounding accomplishment that begins to chip away at the pernicious underlying social casinos.

Declaration of Professor William B. Rubenstein ("Rubenstein Decl.") ¶ 2.

Because the extraordinary Settlement here is but a part of Class Counsel's efforts carrying the banner nationwide for victims of the social casino industry, a summary of Class Counsel's efforts both before this Court and otherwise is provided below.

I. Class Counsel's 2015 Social Casino Lawsuits.

Having concluded that social casinos—including Caesars' and Playtika's "Caesars Slots" and "Slotomania"—constituted gambling, between April and October of 2015, Class Counsel filed (5) proposed class action lawsuits (including one against Caesars and Playtika), in four (4) different courts, alleging class claims under five (5) different sets of state gambling laws. See (1) Dupee v. Playtika Santa Monica, et al., No. 15-cv-01021 (N.D. Ohio May 21, 2015) (alleging claims under Ohio and Nevada gambling laws); (2) Kater v. Churchill Downs Inc., No. 15-cv-612 (W.D. Wash Apr. 17, 2015) (alleging claims under Washington gambling law); (3) Mason v. Mach. Zone, Inc., No. 15-cv-01107 (D. Md. Apr. 17, 2015) (alleging claims under California and Illinois gambling laws) (4) Phillips v. Double Down Interactive LLC, No. 15-cv-04301 (N.D.

Ill.) (removed May 14, 2015) (alleging claims under Illinois gambling laws); and (5) Ristic v. Mach. Zone, Inc., No. 15-cv-08996 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 9, 2015) (alleging claims under Illinois gambling laws).

Each federal district court initially presented with Class Counsel's theory of these cases—i.e., that social casinos are illegal gambling and consequently must return to consumers their ill-gotten gains—squarely rejected it. See Mason, 851 F.3d at 316; Kater v. Churchill Downs Inc., No. 15-cv-612 MJP, 2015 WL 9839755, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 19, 2015), rev'd, 886 F.3d 784 (9th Cir. 2018); Dupee v. Playtika Santa Monica, No. 15-cv-1201, 2016 WL 795857, at *1 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 1, 2016); Phillips v. Double Down Interactive LLC, 173 F. Supp. 3d 731, 739 (N.D. Ill. 2016); Ristic v. Mach. Zone, Inc., No. 15-cv-8996, 2016 WL 4987943, at *4 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 19, 2016). In representative fashion, Judge Pechman's dismissal order in Kater concluded that "Big Fish Casino does not award something of value satisfying the requisite prize element, and therefore the game is not 'illegal gambling' under Washington law." Kater, 2015 WL 9839755, at *4.

II. Class Counsel Appeals The Kater Dismissal And The Ninth Circuit Reverses.

Following Judge Pechman's dismissal order in Kater, Class Counsel appealed. Merits briefing before the Ninth Circuit concluded in September 2016, and oral argument was held in February 2018. In March 2018, the Ninth Circuit reversed:

> In this appeal, we consider whether the virtual game platform "Big Fish Casino" constitutes illegal gambling under Washington law. Defendant–Appellee Churchill Downs, the game's owner and operator, has made millions of dollars off of Big Fish Casino. However, despite collecting millions in revenue, Churchill Downs, like Captain Renault in Casablanca, purports to be shocked—shocked!—to find that Big Fish Casino could constitute illegal gambling. We are not. We therefore reverse the district court and hold that because Big Fish Casino's virtual chips are a "thing of value," Big Fish Casino constitutes illegal gambling under Washington law.

Kater, 886 F.3d at 785. In that opinion, the Ninth Circuit dispensed with a variety of the arguments that had persuaded district courts nationwide to initially dismiss the social casino cases. For example, the Court rejected the argument that social casino chips "do not extend gameplay, but only enhance it." Id. at 787. The Circuit also rejected Big Fish's argument that the Washington State Gambling Commission ("WSGC" or "Commission") had determined that social casino games aren't gambling, concluding that "these documents do not indicate that the Commission adopted a formal position on social gaming platforms." Id. at 788. And the Ninth Circuit explicitly rejected "the reasoning of other federal courts that have held that certain 'free to play' games are not illegal gambling." Id.

III. Class Counsel's Litigation Conduct Before This Court.

Soon after remand in Kater, Class Counsel filed this proposed class action lawsuit on behalf of Plaintiff Sean Wilson, alleging that, like Big Fish Casino, Defendants' social casino games—including "Slotomania," "House of Fun," "Caesars Slots," and "Vegas Downtown Slots" (together, the "Applications")—constitute unlawful gambling under Washington's gambling laws. See Dkt. 1.

In July 2018, Playtika moved to dismiss, arguing variously that the Court lacks personal jurisdiction over it, that a forum selection clause required the Court to dismiss the case with prejudice in favor of the dispute being litigated in Tel Aviv-Jaffa, Israel (and under Israeli law), and that Wilson's claim failed because virtual coins in Playtika's Applications are not "things of value." See generally Dkt. 40. To properly address Playtika's jurisdictional arguments, the parties stipulated to, and the Court granted, Plaintiff leave to conduct jurisdictional discovery. See Dkts. 44, 45. With that discovery concluded, Plaintiff filed separate briefs: (1) opposing Playtika's forum non conveniens motion, see Dkt. 48; (2) opposing Playtika's 12(b)(6) motion, see Dkt. 52; and (3) opposing Playtika's personal jurisdiction motion, see Dkt. 57.

In November 2018, in a twenty-five page published opinion, the Court agreed with Plaintiff, finding that Playtika is in fact subject to the Court's personal jurisdiction because Playtika "used its apps to sell many coins to many users located in Washington," that Playtika's forum selection clause arguments failed in part because the State of Washington has a strong interest in "ensuring that its residents are protected against the dangers of" social casino apps, and that Wilson adequately stated a claim because virtual chips in the Applications are a "thing of value" and no relevant exceptions apply. Wilson v. Playtika, Ltd., 349 F. Supp. 3d 1028 (W.D. Wash. 2018) (Dkt. 68). Playtika answered shortly thereafter. See Dkt. 74.

By prior agreement of the Parties, Caesars had reserved its pleadings motions pending the Court's resolution of Playtika's pleadings motions. See Dkt. 37. And by additional agreement of the Parties, Wilson and Playtika agreed to an elongated briefing schedule for Caesars's pleadings motions, intended to allow Wilson adequate time to conduct appropriate jurisdictional discovery. See Dkt. 71. In line with those agreements, shortly after the Court's denial of Playtika's motions, Caesars filed its own motions challenging the Court's jurisdiction and arguing that Wilson failed to state a claim. See Dkt. 75. Over the coming months, the Parties engaged in substantial jurisdictional discovery efforts, including Caesars's production of thousands of pages of documents. See Dkt. 121 ¶ 3.

In March 2019, Playtika filed a motion pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1292(b) asking the Court to certify for interlocutory appeal the order denying Playtika's motion to dismiss, arguing that Plaintiff's repeated use of Defendants' social casino games meant he had consented to Defendants' forum selection provision. See Dkt. 79. Over Plaintiff's opposition, see Dkt. 84, that motion was granted. See Dkt. 85. The Ninth Circuit initially stayed Playtika's petition for permission to appeal pending resolution of appeals in the Huuuge and DoubleDown cases, where the defendants similarly contended that plaintiffs were bound by arbitration provisions in part because they repeatedly used the defendants' social casino apps. In March 2020, after plaintiffs in those related case prevailed in both appeals, the Ninth Circuit denied Playtika's petition. See Dkt. 101.

Around the same time, Playtika filed a motion asking the Court to certify a trio of questions to the Washington Supreme Court, essentially asking the Court to circumvent Kater by giving the Washington Supreme Court an opportunity to determine that social casino chips are not, in fact, "things of value." See Dkt. 99. Plaintiff opposed that motion, arguing both that it was procedurally improper and that Playtika was not entitled to a "second chance at victory" on an issue it already lost. See Dkt. 102 at 2 (quoting All. for Prop. Rights & Fiscal Responsibility v.

City of Idaho Falls, 742 F.3d 1100, 1108 (9th Cir. 2013)). The Court agreed with Plaintiff, denying Playtika's certification motion in May 2020. See Dkt. 113. In May 2020, the Parties agreed to attempt to resolve this case through mediation.

On June 10, 2020, the Parties reached an agreement in principle as to an appropriate settlement amount. See Dkt. 121 ¶ 9. Negotiations on remaining term sheet issues continued until a final term sheet was executed on June 12, 2020. See id. ¶ 10. But the negotiations didn't end there: for the next several weeks, the Parties worked out the details of a final and binding class action settlement agreement, exchanged several rounds of a working settlement document and supporting exhibits, met and conferred telephonically to flesh out the remaining disputed provisions, and began the process of meeting and conferring with the Platform Providers to design a robust notice and administration plan. See id. ¶ 11. On August 5, 2020, the Parties completed execution of the Settlement Agreement now before the Court. See id. ¶ 12. Wilson filed an unopposed motion for preliminary approval of that Agreement on August 23, 2020, see Dkt. 120, and the Court granted preliminary approval on August 31, 2020, see Dkt. 124.

IV. Class Counsel's Litigation-Adjacent Efforts On Behalf Of The Class.

As a necessary extension of the traditional litigation work necessitated by this case, Class Counsel has for years undertaken all manner of litigation-adjacent work for the benefit of the Class. These efforts are organized into three categories and summarized below.

First, Class Counsel went great lengths to protect this litigation from collateral administrative attacks. Just two weeks after the Ninth Circuit's mandate issued in Kater, Defendants' industry peers dispatched their litigation attorneys to the WSGC's session in Tacoma to present a "Petition for a Declaratory Order" asking the Commission to declare that other social casino games "do not constitute gambling within the meaning of the Washington Gambling Act, RCW 9.46.0237." Kater, No. 15-cv-612, Dkt. 79-5 at 10. At each of the three public hearings that followed—in July 2018 (in Tacoma), August 2018 (in Pasco), and October 2018 (in Olympia)—Class Counsel appeared before the Commission, and Class Counsel presented live argument at both the Tacoma and Pasco hearings. See Logan Decl. ¶ 10. Class Counsel supplemented these appearances with a formal letter to the Commission (ahead of the Tacoma hearing) and, on the Commission's request, with an eighteen-page comment for the Commission's consideration (between the Tacoma and Pasco hearings). Id. The WGSC ultimately declined to enter a Declaratory Order. See Kater, No. 15-cv-612, Dkt. 74-1. And even after the initial declaratory order proceedings, Class Counsel continued to represent the interests of the consumers in additional flare-ups before the WSGC, including in similar declaratory order proceedings initiated by The Stars Group. See Logan Decl. ¶ 11.

Second, Class Counsel has been the frontline opposition to the social casino industry's attempt to change Washington's gambling laws. Starting in early 2019, the International Social Gaming Association ("ISGA"), a trade organization co-founded by Playtika, provided legislators draft legislation that would amend Washington's gambling statutes with the effect (and specific intent) of gutting these lawsuits. See id. ¶ 12. Over time, these efforts gained steam, with Senators Mark Mullet and John Braun, as well as Representatives Zack Hudgins, Brandon Vick, Bill Jenkin and Brian Blake, collectively sponsoring four (4) bills threatening to kill these cases by "clarifying" that players who lose money playing social casino games cannot recover under the RMLGA. H.B. 2720, 66th Leg., Reg. Sess. (Wash. 2020); S.B. 6568, 66th Leg., Reg. Sess. (Wash. 2020); H.B. 2041, 66th Leg., Reg Sess. (Wash. 2019); S.B. 5886, 66th Leg., Reg. Sess. (Wash. 2019). Local and national media covered these efforts and left no doubt as to what the ISGA hoped to accomplish. See, e.g., Phillip Conneller, Washington State Social Gaming Legislation Could Rescue Big Fish Casino From Legal Trouble, CASINO.ORG (Jan. 29, 2020), https://bit.ly/39dKtWM.

In response, Class Counsel engaged the lobbying firm Peggen & Mara Political Consulting LLP—experts in Washington tribal and gambling laws—to help Class Counsel (i) stay on top of all administrative and legislative developments in the Washington gaming industry; (ii) understand the intricacies of Washington's specific legislative process, including the nuances of—and procedures for—bill drafting; (iii) understand who the relevant lawmakers and stakeholders in Washington's gaming industry were, what those lawmakers and stakeholders cared about, and how Class Counsel could educate those lawmakers and stakeholders about social casinos; and (iv) work with legislative groups, task forces, and other interested parties in in Washington's gaming industry, including the Washington Indian Gaming Association ("WIGA"). See Logan Decl. ¶ 13.

Class Counsel then used this information and expertise to amplify the Class's interests and concerns. Class Counsel drafted memos and prepared handouts for a variety of stakeholders, including State Senators and Representatives, the WIGA, the Washington Trial Attorneys' Association, the Public Interest Research Group, and other organizations dedicated to remedying problem gambling. See id. ¶ 14.

Class Counsel also personally met with lawmakers in the Washington Senate and House, met with officials in the Executive branch, and provided in-person testimony to the Washington Legislature. See id. ¶ 15. For example, in January 2019—after Class Counsel got wind that the ISGA was planning to gut Washington's gambling statutes (in what would become the failed H.B. 2041 and S.B. 5886)—Class Counsel met in-person with Representative Shelley Kloba, then-Representative (and now Senator) Derek Stanford, Lieutenant Governor Cyrus Habib, and several other government officials. See id. ¶ 16. On January 28, 2020, Class Counsel met with Senator Stanford at the State Capital—following Class Counsel's written and in-person testimony before the House Civil Rights & Judiciary Committee in (successful) opposition to H.B. 2720. See id. ¶ 17.

Class Counsel's efforts went beyond in-person testimony and meetings with legislative and executive officials. On March 21, 2019, Class Counsel sent formal correspondence to Senator Mark Mullet ahead of a planned work session before the Senate and Financial Institutions, Economic and Trade Committee about social casinos—in which Defendants' industry peers had been invited, but Class Counsel had not. See id. ¶ 18. In August 2019, Class Counsel travelled to Anacortes—on Swinomish Tribe land—to speak at a monthly WIGA meeting, in opposition to the ISGA-backed bills. See id. ¶ 19. And in early 2020, Class Counsel coordinated the submission of more than 200 letters to Washington State Representatives from social casino players across the country and spoke with local press about the ISGA's renewed efforts to gut these lawsuits. See id. ¶ 20; see also Melissa Santos, 'Free' casino apps prey on addiction, users say, and WA lawmakers are considering a crackdown, CROSSCUT (Feb. 7, 2020), https://bit.ly/3hfFxDl. These efforts held the line. Each bill introduced over the past two years has stalled.

Third, beyond Class Counsel's work on legislative and administrative fronts, Class Counsel also helped its clients sound the alarm on social casinos to the public at large by helping clients share their stories with local and national media, including in the following pieces:

V. The Settlement Now Before The Court.

Following all of these efforts, and with the assistance of Phillips ADR, Class Counsel reached a settlement with Defendants that provides a non-reversionary cash recovery of $38 million from which every Class Member who has ever lost money playing Defendants' social casino games is entitled to recover a substantial portion of their losses back. See Dkt. 121-1 § 1.32 (the "Agreement"). Class members with higher levels of losses are entitled to recover increasingly higher percentages of their losses, and the upper echelons of "VIP" players stand to recover more than half of their losses. See id. §§ 1.36, 2.1(c). The Settlement also requires Defendants to implement meaningful prospective relief, including by providing addiction-related resources within their social casino games and by creating and honoring a self-exclusion policy akin to what one might expect to soon see at the Emerald Queen or the Muckleshoot casinos. See id. § 2.2.

ARGUMENT

Class Counsel seek an award of 25% (or $9,500,000) of the $38 million, all-cash, non-reversionary common fund they have secured for the Class. In addition, Class Counsel seek reimbursement of their reasonably incurred costs and expenses. In evaluating these requests, the Court must "assume the role of fiduciary for the class plaintiffs" and "[r]ubber-stamp approval, even in the absence of objections, is improper." Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002). The Court's scrutiny is welcome here. A close look at the fee request, particularly in the context of the analyses provided by two leading scholars on class action fee awards, demonstrates that the requested fee is reasonable given the outstanding result and the high degree of risk faced by counsel. Similarly, Class Counsel's expenses were necessary to prosecute this nationwide class action and consequently should be reimbursed.

I. The Court Should Award Class Counsel 25% Of The $38 Million Common Fund.

Because Washington law governs the claims in this case, it also governs the award of fees. Id. at 1047. Under Washington law, the percentage-of-recovery approach is generally used to calculate fees in common fund cases, and 25% is considered the "benchmark" with 20%-30% the usual range. Bowles v. Dep't of Ret. Sys., 121 Wash.2d 52, 72, 847 P.2d 440 (1993) (observing that the lodestar method is generally reserved for statutory fee cases); see also Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 142 F. Supp. 2d 1299, 1302 (W.D. Wash. 2001), aff'd, 290 F.3d 1043 (9th Cir. 2002) ("The Washington Supreme Court rejected the lodestar method for determining attorneys fees in a common fund action.").

Washington courts look to federal law for guidance on determining an appropriate fee percentage, see, e.g., id., and the Ninth Circuit considers 25% the "benchmark" fee award in common fund cases, Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1047. When Ninth Circuit courts consider a request for attorneys' fees based on the percentage method, they typically consider some combination of the following non-exhaustive list of factors: "(1) the extent to which class counsel achieved exceptional results for the class; (2) whether the case was risky for class counsel; (3) whether counsel's performance generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund; (4) the market rate for the particular field of law; (5) the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case; (6) and whether the case was handled on a contingency basis In re Optical Disk Drive Prods. Antitrust Litig., 959 F.3d 922, 930 (9th Cir. 2020).

EDELSON PC
350 N LaSalle Street, 14th Floor, Chicago, IL 60654
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

Here, Class Counsel request a fee award of $9,500,000, or 25% of the Settlement Fund, in addition to reimbursement of their reasonably-incurred expenses. This percentage would properly compensate Class Counsel for achieving an exceptional result in extraordinarily risky, novel litigation.

A. Class Counsel Obtained an Unprecedented Result for the Class.

When determining an award of attorneys' fees in a class action, "[t]he most important factor is the results achieved for the class." In re Nat'l Collegiate Athletic Ass'n Athletic Grant-in-Aid Cap Antitrust Litig., No. 4:14-md-2541-CW, 2017 WL 6040065, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2017), aff'd, 768 F. App'x 651 (9th Cir. 2019). Typically, courts "aim to tether the value of an attorneys' fees award to the value of the class recovery." In re HP Inkjet Printer Litig., 716 F.3d 1173, 1178 (9th Cir. 2013). In a common fund case in which class counsel seek an award as a percentage of the fund, "this task is fairly effortless. The district court can assess the relative value of the attorneys' fees and the class relief simply by comparing the amount of cash paid to the attorneys with the amount of cash paid to the class. The more valuable the class recovery, the greater the fees award." Id.

Here, the result is unprecedented. Though the social casino industry has been a multi-billion dollar business for the better part of a decade, no social casino company has ever before paid a dime to settle class allegations that social casino games are illegal gambling. Yet here, Defendants have agreed to pay $38,000,000, in cash, to settle the Settlement Class' claims. Even at the top end of the Settlement Administrator's projected claims rate ranges, participating Class Members stand to recover substantial portions of their losses to the Applications, with Settlement Class Members in the highest category of Lifetime Spending Amounts slated to recover the majority—i.e., more than half—of their losses. See Declaration of Scott M. Fenwick, Dkt. 122 ¶¶ 13-16. By way of example, Class Members whose losses are approximately $10,000, $30,000, and $100,000, respectively, are projected to recover $1,500-$2,500 ($10,000), $7,500-$13,500 ($30,000), and $50,000+ ($100,000). Id. For thousands of class members, credit card debts will be wiped out; home equity lines of credit will be paid off; and in the midst of an economic crisis, five-figure and six-figure debts accumulated from playing Defendants' games will be erased overnight.

It is difficult to overstate what a triumph this Settlement is for the Settlement Class, particularly given the federal judiciary's initial reception to these cases and the fact that no defendant has ever before paid a penny to settle class action claims pertaining to social casinos. Professor Rubenstein describes the recovery, under the circumstances, as an "astounding accomplishment" and calls the relief provided "historic." Rubenstein Decl. ¶¶ 1-2. It is also difficult to compare this Settlement to other settlements, given that it has no true peers to be reasonably measured against. On the facts, the closest comparator is almost certainly In re Apple In-App Purchase Litigation, in which the class alleged that certain apps offered within Apple's App Store were "highly addictive, designed deliberately so, and tend to compel children playing them to purchase large quantities" of in-game currency, "amounting to as much as $100 per purchase or more." No. 5:11-cv-01758 EJD, 2013 WL 1856713, at *1 (N.D. Cal. May 2, 2013) (emphasis added). But there, the settlement established no common fund at all, the default recovery for participating class members was five dollars (yes, $5), and with adequate proof some claiming class members could claim refunds for a single 45-day period of purchases. Id. at 5. Similarly, in Kim v. Tinder, Inc., the class alleged unfair pricing with regard to in-app purchases in a popular dating app. No. 18-cv-3093-JFW(ASX), 2019 WL 2576367, at *2 (C.D. Cal. June 19, 2019). The settlement established no common fund at all, and participating class members received 50 free "Super Likes" (i.e., coupons) in addition to an option to select a $25 cash payment (as an alternative to other coupon offers). Id. Without meaning to punch down, there is just no comparison between the settlements that have ever previously been reached in factually-similar cases and the Settlement currently before the Court.

350 N LaSalle Street, 14th Floor, Chicago, IL 60654
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

Perhaps the better measuring stick for this Settlement are class action settlements in the consumer privacy space, given that those settlements often resolve large (statutory) damages claims and are premised on novel interpretations of law as applied to allegations of internet-based misconduct. Consumer privacy settlements, too, are notorious for failing to provide consumers with real-world relief for the damages they have suffered. For example, in In re Google Referrer Header Privacy Litigation, 869 F.3d 737, 740 (9th Cir. 2017), vacated on other grounds by Frank v. Gaos, 139 S. Ct. 1041 (2019), the Ninth Circuit affirmed a 25% award of attorneys' fees in a case where consumers did not see a single penny. All of the money was to go to cy pres, with no cash relief for the class at all. Gaos, 139 S. Ct. at 1045.

And even in consumer privacy settlements that do provide monetary relief and have been adjudged to be fair and reasonable by district courts, the relief is often primarily in-kind. See, e.g., In re Anthem, Inc. Data Breach Litig., 327 F.R.D. 299, 324 (N.D. Cal. 2018) (explaining that less than 10% of the "fund" was available for cash payments, with the rest being reserved to purchase credit monitoring services); In re Yahoo! Inc. Customer Data Sec. Breach Litig., No. 16-md-02752-LHK, 2020 WL 4212811, at *22 (N.D. Cal. July 22, 2020) (cash relief made available only to class members with existing credit monitoring, out-of-pocket losses, and who paid Yahoo! for premium services).

Given that the benefits of the Settlement far outshine those in any other remotely comparable class action settlement, Class Counsel respectfully submits that it is reasonable to award a benchmark fee of 25% of the Settlement Fund. Cf. HP, 716 F.3d at 1178 (discussing the benefits of tying counsel's compensation to class members' recovery). The results achieved here are extraordinary, and the requested fee is in line with what courts regularly award in Washington, in the Ninth Circuit, and nationwide. See Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 17; accord Declaration of Professor Charles Silver ("Silver Decl.") ¶¶ 70-71. Consequently, Plaintiff respectfully submits that awarding 25% of the common fund is appropriate, and that there is no reason for a downward departure from the requested "benchmark" award.

350 N LaSalle Street, 14th Floor, Chicago, IL 60654
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

B. Class Counsel's Efforts Generated Non-Monetary Benefits.

The monetary component of this Settlement is the chief relief made available to the Settlement Class, and it is the only component of the Settlement that Class Counsel ask to be compensated for directly. That said, the non-monetary benefits that Class Counsel achieved for the Class in this groundbreaking litigation are significant, and they further justify the appropriateness of the requested fee award here.

First, and most obviously, there is the prospective relief that Playtika agreed to. The Settlement requires Playtika to implement meaningful prospective relief, including by providing addiction-related resources within its social casino games and by creating and honoring a meaningful self-exclusion policy. See Agreement § 2.2. Given the fervor with which Playtika insisted that its games are not gambling, these in-game changes are a monumental achievement for the Settlement Class. They represent the first steps toward much-needed self-regulation within the social casino industry, and given Playtika's prominence in the social casino industry, other industry players have and will continue to follow suit.

This litigation also spawned legislative and regulatory efforts, backed by well-funded industry groups including the ISGA, to defang Washington's gambling laws. See Logan Decl. ¶ 12. Had Class Counsel ignored these efforts, a change to Washington's gambling laws could have caused consumers to lose any opportunity to recover in this litigation as well as leaving them unprotected more generally. Instead, Class Counsel deployed significant resources in Olympia and elsewhere to educate legislators on the social casino industry, to coordinate efforts by other interested parties, and to generally ensure that Class Members' voices were heard. See id. ¶ 10. Absent these efforts, the loudest voices in Olympia and before the WSGC would have been the lawyers and lobbyists paid for by Defendants and the trade organizations they helped bankroll. Simply put, Class Counsel's legislative and regulatory efforts were an integral part of successfully prosecuting this case, and Class Counsel's success in these areas created enormous benefits for the Class. See id.

Finally, it bears mentioning that this Settlement served—alongside the Kater settlement—as a catalyst for the settlement in Wilson v. Huuuge case. Many of the Class Members in this action, including Class Representative Sean Wilson, are class members in the Huuuge case. See id. ¶ 25. In other words, this Settlement served as a catalyst for many Class Members to obtain monetary and non-monetary benefits in another lawsuit. So while the Court should consider the additional attorneys' fees requests in the other settling social casino cases in conjunction with its consideration of the fee requested in this case, see In re Optical Disk, 959 F.3d at 933, it should also consider that: (i) this case conferred substantial benefits upon many Class Members outside the confines of this specific Settlement, and (ii) unlike in Optical Disk Drive, Class Counsel was not merely handed a leadership seat in a run-of-the-mill antitrust case and then allowed to harvest repeated fee awards, but instead litigated a de facto MDL, on its own accord and because of its perseverance helped many individual class members obtain multiple recoveries across multiple lawsuits.

C. Pursuing this Litigation on a Contingent Basis Was Extremely Risky for Class Counsel.

In determining the appropriateness of a fee award, the next step is to consider the flip side of the results—risk. That is, the amount of the fee depends in part on whether, and to what degree, "class counsel ran the risk of not being paid at all." Steiner v. Am. Broad. Co., 248 F. App'x 780, 782 & n.2 (9th Cir. 2007). Here, Class Counsel worked entirely on contingency, advancing both their time and more than $50,000 in required costs and expenses. See Logan Decl. ¶ 21. If Defendants had won this case, through any number of avenues, Class Counsel would not have been compensated at all.

While that risk exists in all contingency litigation, it was substantially more acute here than in other cases. See Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 24 ("Ten independent factors demonstrate the riskiness of these cases. . . ."). Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1048, illustrates that point well. In Vizcaino, one of the leading Ninth Circuit cases on awarding attorneys' fees in common fund class action settlements, the Ninth Circuit approved the district court's characterization of the case as "extremely risky[.]" The district court arrived at that conclusion because:

350 N LaSalle Street, 14th Floor, Chicago, IL 60654
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

> [T]here were no controlling precedents concerning their claims, only analogies involving various areas of law. In addition, Class Counsel's risk was even greater, and their work made more difficult, because Microsoft is one of the nation's largest and most formidable companies and it, and several law firms, defended the case vigorously for several years.

Vizcaino, 142 F. Supp. 2d at 1303.

Here, Class Counsel found themselves in much the same situation. Unlike other statutes that commonly form the basis for class actions (e.g., the Telephone Consumer Protection Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Fair Debt Collections Practices Act; etc.), Washington's "Return of Money Lost at Gambling" statute had not been heavily litigated when this case was filed in 2015. In fact, to Class Counsel's knowledge, prior to Kater, no class action had ever before alleged claims for recovery under the RMGLA. See Logan Decl. ¶ 22. Certainly, no class action had ever before alleged claims under the RMLGA against social casino companies. Id. That means that all the elements of Plaintiff's claims were matters of first impression. The factual landscape was similarly undeveloped. While some class actions follow on the heels of a government enforcement action in which a public agency has already identified and investigated a problem, this one did not. See Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 24 ("These cases were risky because they did not piggy-back on a government enforcement action . . . [here] Class Counsel detected, investigated, theorized, and executed the entire litigation campaign from scratch."). In fact, one of the principal defenses that Playtika advanced throughout this litigation was that the WSGC had purportedly endorsed social casinos. See, e.g., Playtika, Ltd., 349 F. Supp. 3d at 1043.

The risks of litigating in a novel area were not merely hypothetical. In fact, five federal district courts initially presented with Class Counsel's novel theory of these cases, including a court presented with a case alleging specifically that Playtika and Caesars were both engaged in illegal gambling via their social casinos, rejected it—some emphatically so. A synopsis of those setbacks, which Class Counsel nevertheless persevered through, follows below.

1. Dupee v. Playtika Santa Monica, et al.* No. 15-cv-01021 (N.D. Ohio). In this Northern District of Ohio case, the plaintiff alleged that Slotomania violated Ohio and Nevada gambling laws. On March 1, 2016, the district court dismissed the case with prejudice. See Dupee, 2016 WL 795857, at *1.

2. Mason v. Mach. Zone, Inc.*, No. 15-cv-01107 (D. Md.). In this District of Maryland case, the plaintiff alleged that a virtual slot machine in the video game violated California and Illinois gambling laws. On October 20, 2015, the district court dismissed the case with prejudice, calling plaintiff's complaint "a hodgepodge of hollow claims lacking allegations of real-world harms or injuries." Mason, 140 F. Supp. 3d at 459. In March 2017, after briefing and oral argument, the Fourth Circuit affirmed. See Mason, 851 F.3d at 316.

3. Kater v. Churchill Downs Inc.*, No. 15-cv-612 (W.D. Wash.). Kater was filed in this District and raised claims that "Big Fish Casino" violated Washington's gambling laws. Plaintiff's core theory was that because users wagered virtual chips on virtual slot machines, those virtual chips were "things of value" that extended the privilege of continued gameplay. On November 19, 2015, the Honorable Marsha J. Pechman dismissed Kater's claims with prejudice. Judge Pechman reasoned that Big Fish Casino could not constitute illegal gambling in Washington because, inter alia, "there is never a possibility of receiving real cash or merchandise, no matter how many chips a user wins." Kater, 2015 WL 9839755, at *3.

4. Phillips v. Double Down Interactive LLC,* No. 15-cv-04301 (N.D. Ill.). In this Northern District of Illinois case, the plaintiff claimed DoubleDown Casino violated Illinois gambling laws. On March 25, 2016, the court dismissed the case. Phillips, 173 F. Supp. 3d at 739.

5. Ristic v. Mach. Zone, Inc.*, No. 15-cv-08996 (N.D. Ill.). In this Northern District of Illinois case, the plaintiff alleged that the virtual slot machine in the videogame violated Illinois law. On September 19, 2016, the court dismissed, finding that, "while any type of addiction is unfortunate, this court . . . does not read [Illinois law] to protect [the plaintiff] from his own decision to play the Casino." Ristic, 2016 WL 4987943, at *4.

And even after the Ninth Circuit reversed the dismissal in Kater, this was an extraordinarily risky case. Like in Vizcaino, the Defendants here were extraordinarily well-funded. The market capitalization of Caesars alone is more than $14 billion. See Logan Decl. ¶ 23. Having effectively unlimited resources, Defendants were defended primarily by Paul Hastings and Mayer Brown, two of the country's most expensive and prestigious law firms who together—like Microsoft's counsel in Vizcaino, defended this case with vigor. That vigor expanded beyond standard litigation tactics. As just one example, Playtika—in its capacity as an executive member of the ISGA—participated in the hiring of several well-connected lobbyists to try to change Washington gambling law, with the specific intent of gutting these lawsuits. Dkt.

120 at 4. As Professor Rubenstein explains:

> [N]ot only did Class Counsel fight these cases in courts across the country, but as they did, proponents of these games attempted to . . . cram down new non-litigation dispute resolution rules on game users mid-case, and change existing gambling laws and regulations; these actions forced Class Counsel to defend their efforts in multiple arenas simultaneously, lest the entire endeavor be lost. Class Counsel shouldered all of this risk while litigating against large and rich corporations, with seemingly bottomless coffers, yet they did so in a lean fashion without enlisting dozens of law firms to share the risk.

Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 1.

Returning to Vizcaino, in that case Microsoft's powerful lobbying presence in Washington would not legitimately have been able to affect its liability to the class because the claims alleged were common-law contact claims. Here, on the other hand, industry groups like the ISGA used their lobbying influence in Olympia to attempt to gut the RMLGA and end these cases almost before they got off the ground. See Logan Decl. ¶ 12. The ISGA likewise repeatedly attempted to convince the WSGC to issue a "Declaratory Order" effectively immunizing Defendants from any liability in this litigation. Id. ¶ 10. Class Counsel's quick organizing efforts and personal visits to Olympia and various locations for Commission hearings avoided that outcome, but it was—and remains—an extremely serious risk. Indeed, at least once during the pendency of this litigation, industry groups in another state successfully pressured state legislators to amend a gambling statute to immunize social casino companies. See Maine H.P. 35 – L.D. 34, 2019.

In sum, this case involved bringing claims under an untested statute against multi-billion dollar gambling conglomerates, who then proceeded—alongside their industry peers and trade groups—to challenge nearly every issue in nearly every available forum. The risk of nonpayment here was extreme, and that should factor heavily in the Court's determination of a reasonable fee.

D. The Market Supports the Requested Fee.

Although the Ninth Circuit has not adopted the full market-mimicking approach of other circuits, "the market rate for the particular field of law" is still an important consideration.

Optical Disk Drive, 959 F.3d at 930. Here, a market-based analysis supports both the reasonableness of using the percentage method to calculate the fee in this case and the specific percentage Class Counsel requests.

As Professor Charles Silver explains, the market for high-stakes, high-value, plaintiff's-side litigators is entirely driven by a percentage-of-the-recovery model. See Silver Decl. ¶¶ 40-44. That is true across all kinds of plaintiff's firms, all kinds of litigation, and all kinds of claims. Id. Empirical studies of fee arrangements in these cases demonstrate that sophisticated clients almost always pick to incentivize their lawyers by agreeing to a fixed percentage of between 30% and 40% of the recovery. Id. ¶¶ 46-63. The relevant market comparison for the fee in this case, therefore, is the percentage of recovery.

In terms of the specific amount requested here, the private market would easily support a fee higher than the 25% that Class Counsel request. The Ninth Circuit has questioned the market-based approach where the sole point of comparison is other judicially approved fees. See Vizcaino, 290 F.3d at 1049. Accordingly, a good starting point for the market comparison is "commercial litigation where the fee is determined by application of the negotiated contingency percentage to the amount of the recovery." Id. Although no such market truly exists for class actions, see id., there are meaningful comparisons to be had in other areas of law. For example, sophisticated business clients who serve as named plaintiffs in class actions commonly agree to pay fees of 33 percent or greater to their counsel. See Silver Decl. ¶ 50. Similar rates prevail in antitrust class actions in which businesses participate as plaintiffs. Silver Decl. ¶ 51. Ditto pharmaceutical cases, where a 33% fee award "heavily dominate[s]" the market. Silver Decl. ¶ 52. And in patent cases, where plaintiffs "have the option of paying lawyers to represent them on an hourly basis," they almost always "still prefer a contingency arrangement, even at 30-40 percent, to bearing the risks and costs of litigation themselves." Silver Decl. ¶ 56.

Comparison to judicially approved fees can also be useful, and that comparison supports Class Counsel's request here as well. Unsurprisingly, given the Ninth Circuit's benchmark, the mean percentage award of attorneys' fees in class actions in the Ninth Circuit is 24.5% of the fund and the mean percentage awarded in the Western District of Washington is 26.98%. See Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 14. In other words, Class Counsel's request for 25% of the Settlement Fund falls below the relevant market rate, meaning a market analysis supports the requested award.

350 N LaSalle Street, 14th Floor, Chicago, IL 60654
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

E. The Court Should Not Conduct a Lodestar Cross-Check.

Class Counsel respectfully submit that consideration of lodestar in this case would not accurately account for the efforts Class Counsel contributed toward the Settlement it obtained for the Class, would not guard against a windfall, and would create perverse incentives for future class actions with regard to efficiency. For that reason, the Court should not—and certainly need not—conduct a lodestar cross-check. See Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 28 ("A lodestar cross-check is not a helpful tool by which to assess the reasonableness of counsel's proposed percentage award in the unique circumstances presented by these interrelated cases"); accord Silver Decl. ¶¶ 72-76.

It is true that some Ninth Circuit panels have encouraged district courts to employ a lodestar cross-check when using the percentage method to award fees based on a common fund. See Farrell v. Bank of America Corp., 827 F. App'x 628, 635 (9th Cir. 2020). But to be clear, it is "settled" law that the Ninth Circuit does not require a lodestar cross-check. Id. at 630; accord Campbell v. Facebook, 951 F.3d 1106, 1126 (9th Cir. 2020); In re Hyundai & Fuel Econ. Litig., 926 F.3d 539, 571 (9th Cir. 2019) (en banc); In re Bluetooth Headset Prod. Liab. Litig., 654 F.3d 935, 944 (9th Cir. 2011); Stanger v. China Elec. Motor, Inc., 812 F.3d 734, 738–39 (9th Cir. 2016); Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1029 (9th Cir. 1998); Six (6) Mexican Workers v. Ariz. Citrus Growers, 904 F.2d 1301, 1311 (9th Cir. 1990).

Rather, a district court may appropriately determine that the circumstances of a given case warrant a certain percentage of a fund—particularly if that percentage is around the 25% benchmark—without considering class counsel's lodestar. See Farrell, 827 F. App'x at 630; accord Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 20 (observing that the Ninth Circuit has found the lodestar crosscheck to be "inapplicable or unhelpful in certain specific situations" and identifying this case as one such situation). Courts in this district, including this Court, routinely do just that. See, e.g., In re HQ Sustainable Mar. Indus., Inc. Derivative Litig., No. 11-cv-910 RSL, 2013 WL 5421626, at

Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

*3 (W.D. Wash. Sept. 26, 2013) (Lasnik, J.) (closely scrutinizing the requested fee award but declining to conduct a lodestar cross-check, awarding class counsel 32% of the benefits conferred on the class in recognition of the complexity of the dispute, the expense of prosecuting related actions, and the difficulty of reaching a settlement with many participants); Ikuseghan v. Multicare Health Sys., No. 14-cv-5539 BHS, 2016 WL 4363198, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 16, 2016) (Settle, J.) (collecting cases, awarding 33% of the fund and declining to conduct a lodestar cross-check).

As Professor Rubenstein explains, at least three unique circumstances specific to these cases render a cross-check unhelpful here:

> - First, this settlement does not stand alone but is one of a group of current (and possibly future) settlements and/or judgments Class Counsel will achieve against social casinos. In this multiple case situation, it is often difficult to attribute lodestar to any one specific case, rendering application of a lodestar cross-check problematic . . . .
> - Second, Class Counsel's work in the social casino space not only encompasses a number of settlements, it also encompasses a number of unsuccessful matters. Contingent fee lawyers do not get paid for losing cases. But the question presented by the lodestar cross-check is not whether to pay class counsel, but what hours of work to recognize in checking the level of counsel's proposed fees in the cases that reach a settlement or judgment for the class . . . At the least, it is fair to acknowledge that the fact that a conventional cross-check might not account for these hours renders such a cross-check less than optimal on facts such as these . . . .
> - Third, this case does not involve solely [traditional] litigation activities. Class Counsel were forced to work on behalf of the class in multiple forums, including legislative arenas and executive branch administrative proceedings, and across various states. Courts have not hesitated to award fees for such activities in appropriate circumstances, but including hours and rates for non-litigation work in a litigation-related lodestar cross-check risks an uncomfortable level of imprecision even within that back-of-the-envelope endeavor . . . .

See Rubenstein Decl. ¶ 21.

More broadly, Professor Silver argues lodestar cross-checks are undesirable for a variety of reasons: they have been uniformly rejected by the private market; they "penalize efficiency and reward delay"; and at bottom they weaken the alignment of incentives between client and counsel (with the effect of discouraging lawyers from taking risks that class members would rationally want them to accept). See Silver Decl. ¶ 73-76. Myriad class action scholars echo Professor Silver's criticism of lodestar cross-checks. Professors Myriam Gilles and Gary B. Friedman, for example, argue that using the lodestar crosscheck effectively blunts the incentives for class counsel to achieve the largest possible award for the class, in turn reducing the deterrence effect of class action. See Myriam Gilles & Gary B. Friedman, Exploding the Class Action Agency Costs Myth: The Social Utility of Entrepreneurial Lawyers, 155 U. PA. L. REV. 103, 150-55 (2006). Similarly, Professor Brian T. Fitzpatrick argues that a lodestar cross-check is simply a way to "sneak the lodestar method in the backdoor," which "sends a bad message to future class action lawyers: don't resolve cases too quickly; drag them out to beef up your lodestar so your fee percentage isn't cut." Brian T. Fitzpatrick, The Conservative Case for Class Actions, University of Chicago Press, Oct 30, 2019.

Consider, for example, In re Volkswagen "Clean Diesel" Marketing Sales Practices, & Products. Liability Litigation, No. 15-md-2672 CRB (JSC), 2017 WL 1047834 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 17, 2017), which was filed eight months after this case. In Volkswagen, almost no adversarial litigation took place. The court expressly noted that "Volkswagen's liability [was] not contested" and commented on "the short time frame it took the parties to settle the . . . class action claims." Id. at *2. The Parties reached a settlement by July 2016 (the same month that, in this case, Churchill Downs submitted its answering brief to the Ninth Circuit) which Judge Breyer approved in March 2017 (while the parties here were exchanging supplemental submissions to the Ninth Circuit). Id. at *1. Nevertheless, class counsel in Volkswagen managed to expend approximately 98,000 hours litigating and settling the case, arriving at a lodestar of $63.5 million. Id. at *5. The court found the hours and lodestar reasonable and determined that "there is no indication that [c]lass [c]ounsel sought to artificially inflate their hours to justify the lodestar amount." Id.

EDELSON PC
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

In this litigation, Class Counsel have long known they could, like the attorneys in Volkswagen, have expended an almost unlimited number of billable hours. Yet, consistent with their principled approach to all cases they handle, Class Counsel staffed these cases leanly and worked efficiently. See Logan Decl. ¶ 24. Briefs were not drafted by committee, but instead assigned to a single attorney who took charge of drafting the arguments, soliciting feedback, and revising accordingly. See id. ¶ 25. Class Counsel declined to conduct a parade of minimally useful third-party depositions (or, moreover, to treat such depositions as conventions). See id. ¶ 26. Class Counsel avoided unnecessary duplication of document review. See id. ¶ 27. Where appropriate, primary responsibility for tasks was assigned to more junior attorneys, with partners acting in a supervisory capacity. See id. ¶ 28. For example, the majority of the briefing was drafted by associate-level attorneys, not senior partners. See id. ¶ 29. And almost all day-to-day communications with opposing counsel—including settlement communications—was led by an associate. See id. ¶ 30.

That is not to say having fewer lawyers on the case slowed down Class Counsel. Class Counsel repeatedly opposed Defendants' efforts to stay or otherwise slow down this litigation. Nor is the point that Edelson's senior partners did not closely manage this case—they of course did. The point is that Class Counsel has worked diligently on this case, has not overstaffed it, and has not performed unnecessary tasks in an effort to pad its lodestar. Consequently, relying on a lodestar cross-check here would effectively penalize Class Counsel's choices and incentivize attorneys in similar situations in the future to delay and overstaff cases for the purpose of manufacturing thousands of unnecessary, additional hours for the sole purpose of inflating lodestars. The Court should not create those incentives with its fee decision in this case.

II. Class Counsel's Reasonably-Incurred Expenses Should Be Reimbursed.

In common-fund cases, the Ninth Circuit has stated that the reasonable expenses of acquiring the fund can be reimbursed to counsel who has incurred the expense. See Vincent v. Hughes Air W., Inc., 557 F.2d 759, 769 (9th Cir. 1977); Acosta v. Frito-Lay, Inc., No. 15-cv-02128-JSC, 2018 WL 646691, at *11 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 31, 2018) ("There is no doubt that an attorney who has created a common fund for the benefit of the class is entitled to reimbursement of reasonable litigation expenses from that fund.") (citation omitted). Expense awards comport with the notion that the district court may "spread the costs of the litigation among the recipients of the common benefit." Wininger v. SI Mgmt. L.P., 301 F.3d 1115, 1121 (9th Cir. 2002).

Here, Class Counsel reasonably incurred and request reimbursement for $56,835.50 in litigation expenses and costs.[4] See Logan Decl. ¶ 31. The most significant line-item is $36,683.99 in costs from Class Counsel's internet advertising expenses related to identifying and engaging with Class Members with large Lifetime Spending Amounts, for purposes of anticipated motion practice. See id. ¶ 32. Class Counsel also paid Phillips ADR $17,500 in connection with the mediation that ultimately led to a settlement in this case. See id. ¶ 33. The remaining $2,651.51 in expenses are the sorts of routine litigation expenses incurred over five years of litigating a complex class action lawsuit: court filing fees, work-related transportation, lodging, meal costs, and postage fees. See id. ¶ 34. These sorts of expenses are in line with those routinely approved in this District and affirmed by the Ninth Circuit. See, e.g., Dennings v. Clearwire Corp., No. 10-cv-1859-JLR, 2013 WL 1858797, at *10 (W.D. Wash. May 3, 2013), aff'd (Sept. 9, 2013).

III. The Court Should Issue Sean Wilson An Incentive Award Of $5,000 And David Taylor, Cathy Burdick, And Jesse Thibert Service Incentive Awards Of $1,000.

The Court should also issue incentive awards to the Class Representatives in recognition of their service to the Class. "Incentive awards are fairly typical in class action cases [to] . . . compensate class representatives for work done on behalf of the class, to make up for financial or reputational risk undertaken in bringing the action, and, sometimes, to recognize their willingness to act as a private attorney general." Rodriguez v. W. Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 958–59 (9th Cir. 2009). To determine the appropriate amount of an award, courts consider "the actions the plaintiff has taken to protect the interests of the class, the degree to which the class has benefitted from those actions, [and] the amount of time and effort the plaintiff expended in pursuing the litigation." Bell v. Consumer Cellular, Inc., No. 15-cv-941, 2017 WL 2672073, at *8 (D. Or. June 21, 2017).

The Court should award Sean Wilson a $5,000 incentive award. As detailed more fully in his declaration, Wilson invested dozens of hours of his time making substantial contributions to the Class, including staying in regular communication with Class Counsel, reviewing and approving pleadings and other papers, and closely reviewing the Settlement Agreement before approving it. See Declaration of Sean Wilson ("Wilson Decl.") ¶ 5. Wilson has made substantial personal sacrifices for the benefit of the Class, including the fact that anyone who Googles his name now sees pages and pages of websites talking about his involvement in these lawsuits. See id. ¶ 4. For these efforts and sacrifices, the Court should issue a reasonable $5,000 incentive award. See McClintic v. Lithia Motors, Inc., No. 11-cv-859 RAJ, 2011 WL 13127844, at *6 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 19, 2011) ($10,000 incentive award reasonable in $1.74 million settlement); Chehalem Physical Therapy v. Coventry Health Care, Inc., No. 3:09-cv-00320-HU, 2014 WL 4373150, at *4 (D. Or. Sept. 3, 2014) ($10,000 incentive awards reasonable).

The Court should also award David Taylor, Cathy Burdick, and Jesse Thibert $1,000 incentive awards. Taylor, Burdick, and Thibert reviewed the terms of the Settlement and ultimately stepped forward to share their approval of the Settlement with the public—helping demonstrate the Settlement's success. See In re Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., No. 11-md-02295, 2017 WL 10777695, at *3 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 25, 2017) (incentive award appropriate where class representatives were "required to review documents" and "they will earn little for their efforts without [] incentive payments").

CONCLUSION

Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court approve Class Counsel's fee request of 25% of the Settlement Fund, or $9,500,000; award Class Counsel costs and expenses in the amount of $56,835.50; award Sean Wilson an incentive award of $5,000; and award David Taylor, Cathy

WHEREAS, Plaintiff has submitted authority and evidence supporting Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and Issuance of Incentive Awards; and

WHEREAS, the Court, having considered the Motion and being fully advised, finds that good cause exists for entry of the Order below; therefore,

IT IS HEREBY FOUND, ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED THAT:

1. Unless otherwise provided herein, all capitalized terms in this Order shall have the same meaning as set forth in Class Counsel's Motion for Award of Attorneys' Fees and Expenses and Issuance of Incentive Awards.

2. The Court confirms its appointment of Jay Edelson, Rafey S. Balabanian, Todd Logan, Alexander G. Tievsky, and Brandt Silver-Korn of Edelson PC as Class Counsel.

A. Attorneys' Fees

3. Class Counsel has requested the Court calculate their award using the percentage-of-the-fund method. Class Counsel requests the Court award 25% of the $38 million common fund as attorneys' fees.

4. These requested attorneys' fees, which reflect the "benchmark" fee award in common fund cases, are fair and reasonable. See Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002). The Court reaches this conclusion after analyzing: (1) the extent to which class counsel achieved exceptional results for the class; (2) whether the case was risky for class counsel; (3) whether counsel's performance generated benefits beyond the cash settlement fund; (4) the market rate for the particular field of law; (5) the burdens class counsel experienced while litigating the case; (6) and whether the case was handled on a contingency basis. In reaching this conclusion, the Court has also taken into account the settlements reached, and fee awards requested, in the Kater v. Churchill Downs and Wilson v. Huuuge actions.

5. Class Counsel performed exceptional work and achieved an exceptional result for the Class. Class Members stand to recover substantial portions of their Lifetime Spending Amount on Defendants' Applications.

EDELSON PC
350 N LaSalle Street, 14th Floor, Chicago, IL 60654
Tel: 312 589 6370 • Fax: 312 589 6378

6. Class Counsel further achieved exceptional non-monetary benefits for the Class. Among other things, Defendants have agreed to meaningful prospective relief for the Class, including providing addiction-related resources on the Applications and creating a robust self-exclusion policy within the Applications.

7. This litigation was extremely risky for Class Counsel. Class Counsel worked entirely on contingency, prosecuted a line of several class actions against well-funded corporations, and pursued an entirely novel legal theory: that Defendants' internet-based "social casinos" violated Washington's "Return of Money Lost at Gambling" statute (RCW 4.24.070). Class Counsel also defended the Class's interests before the Washington State Gambling Commission and the Washington State Legislature.

8. The market also supports Class Counsel's fee request. Contingency arrangements in high-stakes, high-value mass litigation typically fall in the range of 30-40%. See Declaration of Charles M. Silver ¶¶ 47-53. Further, the mean percentage award of attorneys' fees in class actions in the Ninth Circuit is 24.5% of the common fund, and the mean percentage award in this District is 26.98%. See Declaration of William B. Rubenstein ¶ 14.

9. The Court is not required to conduct a lodestar cross-check, Farrell v. Bank of Am. Corp., N.A., 827 F. App'x 628, 630 (9th Cir. 2020), and declines to do so here. Given the unique circumstances presented by this litigation, the Court concludes that a lodestar cross-check would not be a valuable tool to help assess the reasonableness of Class Counsel's fee request. See Declaration William B. Rubenstein ¶¶ 18-22; Declaration of Charles M. Silver ¶¶ 72-76.

10. The Court grants Class Counsel's request for a fee award of 25% of the common fund, or $9,500,000.

B. Costs and Expenses

11. In addition to the fee request, Class Counsel requests reimbursement of $56,835.50 in costs and expenses.

12. The Court finds these costs and expenses reasonable and appropriate. See Dennings v. Clearwire Corp., No. C10-1859-JLR, 2013 WL 1858797, at *10 (W.D. Wash. May

EDELSON PC

3, 2013), aff'd (Sept. 9, 2013). The Court consequently grants Class Counsel's motion for reimbursement of $56,835.50 in costs and expenses.

C. Incentive Awards

13. Class Counsel requests an incentive award of $5,000 for Sean Wilson and an incentive award of $1,000 each for David Taylor, Cathy Burdick, and Jesse Thibert.

14. The requested incentive awards are fair and reasonable. Wilson invested substantial time in this case, risked reputational harm, and otherwise made significant contributions to the Class. A $5,000 incentive award is reasonable for his services. See McClintic v. Lithia Motors, Inc., No. C11-859RAJ, 2011 WL 13127844, at *6 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 19, 2011). Taylor, Burdick, and Thibert reviewed the terms of the settlement and stepped forward to share their approval of the settlement with the public. A $1,000 incentive award for each is reasonable for their services. See In re Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, Tel. Consumer Prot. Act Litig., No. 11-md-02295, 2017 WL 10777695, at *3 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 25, 2017) (incentive award appropriate where class representatives "were required to review documents" and "they will earn little for their efforts without [] incentive payments").

D. Conclusion

15. Based on the foregoing findings and analysis, the Court awards Class Counsel $9,500,000 in attorneys' fees; awards Class Counsel costs and expenses in the amount of $56,835.50; awards Sean Wilson an incentive award of $5,000; and awards David Taylor, Cathy Burdick, and Jesse Thibert incentive awards of $1,000 each.
